1,000 Feet of New Sidewalk Is to Be Built by the WPA

Charge Is Only $14 Per 50 Feet—Property Owners Signing Up

BUILD DRIVEWAYS

Material Cost, Paid by Owner, Is Only 9 Cents Per Square Foot

Contract for construction of 1,000 feet of new sidewalk for Hope is expected to be signed by the end of this week with the cost to the property owner only $14 per 50 running feet.

Four property owners had signed up Wednesday for more than one third of the 1,000 feet. Other property owners were expected to complete arrangements this week for construction of new sidewalks.

The Works Progress Administration (WPA) is building sidewalks in front of homes at only $14 per 50 running feet, which covers the property owners share for a concrete walk four feet wide and four inches thick.

It was announced Wednesday that the WPA would also build driveways leading from the sidewalk to the street for 9 cents per square foot.

The WPA will also build new concrete walk leading from the present sidewalk to the street for 9 cents per square foot, the announcement said.

Charges for construction of these walks is said to be a very small part of the cost. The WPA is furnishing labor and other expense except material which WPA officials have figured the cost at $14 per 50 running feet.

Persons willing to co-operate with WPA in sidewalk construction are urged to get in touch with City Treasurer Charles Reynerson at the city hall.

Mr. Reynerson has been appointed to work out arrangements with property owners and is in a position to answer all questions concerning this project.

TIENTSIN, China.—(AP)—A woman assassin Wednesday killed Marshal Sun Chuan-fank, bitter opponent of the Nanking government and often mentioned as a possible Japanese choice to lead an independent movement in North China.

Treaty Rumor Denied
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Tokyo newspaper reports of a secret military alliance between the United States, Soviet Russia and China were described Wednesday at the Department of State as "too silly and ridiculous" to deserve notice.

Japanese Propaganda
TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—Most of the afternoon vernacular (native) newspapers gave prominence Wednesday to dispatches from Hsingking, Manchoukuo, of "reports reaching certain quarters" that a secret military agreement between the United States, Soviet Russia and China is imminent.

The reports alleged that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, and W. W. Yen, Chinese ambassador to Russia, have already concluded the pact, which the United States is expected to join shortly.

The agreement, the dispatches said, would obligate the signatories to maintain armed forces in the Orient to preserve peace there.

Japanese Cautious
TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—Police forbade newspapers Tuesday to publish anything concerning military forces "which may be sent to China" except in official statements, indicating the possibility of armed pressure in the deepening Sino-Japanese crisis.

A foreign office spokesman said Japan contemplated no military action at Shanghai because of anti-Japanese incidents for the present. He said Tokyo might have to "sternly warn" Nanking against the incidents, but expressed hope they would be settled locally at Shanghai.

2 Negroes Lynched by Mob in Texas

Alleged Slayers of Girl Wrested From Officers and Are Hanged

COLUMBUS, Texas.—(AP)—A mob of some 700 persons including several women hanged two negro boys Tuesday night for the brutal slaying of Geraldine Kollman, 19, high school honor graduate.

Ten masked and armed men forced two officers to surrender Ernest Collins, 15, and Benny Mitchell, 16, who allegedly confessed attacking the girl and throwing her body into a creek.

Fulton Negro Is Hit-and-Run Victim

Son Beard, 22, Found Dead at West Approach of State Toll Bridge

Son Beard, 22-year-old negro, was found dead at the west approach of the Fulton toll bridge about 8 p. m. Tuesday. He had been struck by a hit-and-run driver.

The body was discovered by an eastward-bound motorist who reported to Will Orton, bridge keeper. Upon investigation Mr. Orton found the negro sprawled in the middle of the pavement.

A severe head injury apparently caused death. The negro was unconscious and died about a minute after Mr. Orton reached him.

The Miller county coroner investigated and said that the negro apparently had been struck by a hit-and-run motorist. Sheriff Tom Sewell of Miller county, and Sheriff Jim Bearden of Hempstead county also investigated.

The Beard negro lived on the Cox plantation about a mile and a half west of Fulton. There had been no arrests at noon Wednesday, as far as could be learned here.

Girdling Globe by Air Soon to Be Just a Little Matter of Buying Your Ticket

China Clipper Line, Beginning Nov. 22, Leaves Single Gap

Giant New Plane Will Make Commercial Flight to Philippines

AND THEN TO CHINA

Only Break in World Girdle Is From There to Singapore

SAN FRANCISCO.—(NEA)—When the giant China Clipper takes off here November 22 for its first commercial flight to Manila, the time will be very near when you can step into an airline office and buy yourself a ticket for a flight around the world.

Except for a short span to connect Dutch or British lines at Java or Singapore with the new American line at Manila or Canton, China, the world is completely girdled by airplane lines running on regular commercial schedules. Your annual two-week vacation will contain more than enough flying hours to allow you to see the whole round world.

All this has been happening so fast that it has slipped past many people. Remember that only eight years ago Lindbergh's magnificent New York-Paris flight showed the world that trans-ocean air lines were just around the corner.

Quietly and efficiently the corner has been turned almost before we knew it. In a matter of months, flying around the world will have become not the daring stunt of an ace flyer, but a mere matter of buying a ticket.

Sixty hours to Manila
On its first Manila flight, the China Clipper will carry no paying passengers, but shortly thereafter, as two more sister ships come into the service and further tests have been added to already exhaustive preparations, the mere buying of a ticket will take you from the Golden Gate to Manila in 60 hours, and very shortly thereafter, six hours farther on to China, probably to Canton.

Efforts are being made to connect this new American line direct from Manila to both the British lines at Singapore and the Dutch lines at Surabaya, Java. But in the meantime, when the American line is extended to Canton, it will be very close to connection with an existing British line now running between Hong Kong and Singapore.

Network Over Europe
This short gap once closed, a magnificent array of almost parallel British, Dutch, and French airways swings west across India and the Near East to Europe. That continent is already well net-worked with Russian, German, French, Dutch, and British lines.

Once in Europe, choice can be made between the German dirigible and seaplane lines and a French line across the South Atlantic to Natal, Brazil. Here you connect with Pan-American's well-tried system to Miami. And once back in the United States, the whole network of well-developed American airways is at your disposal for the flight back to San Francisco, completing the circuit of the globe with no more preparation than is required by sitting down with an air traffic expert, figuring out the connections, and buying the tickets.

Such a trip will be shortened with developments of a North Atlantic line, expected within a few years as soon as diplomatic difficulties can be ironed out.

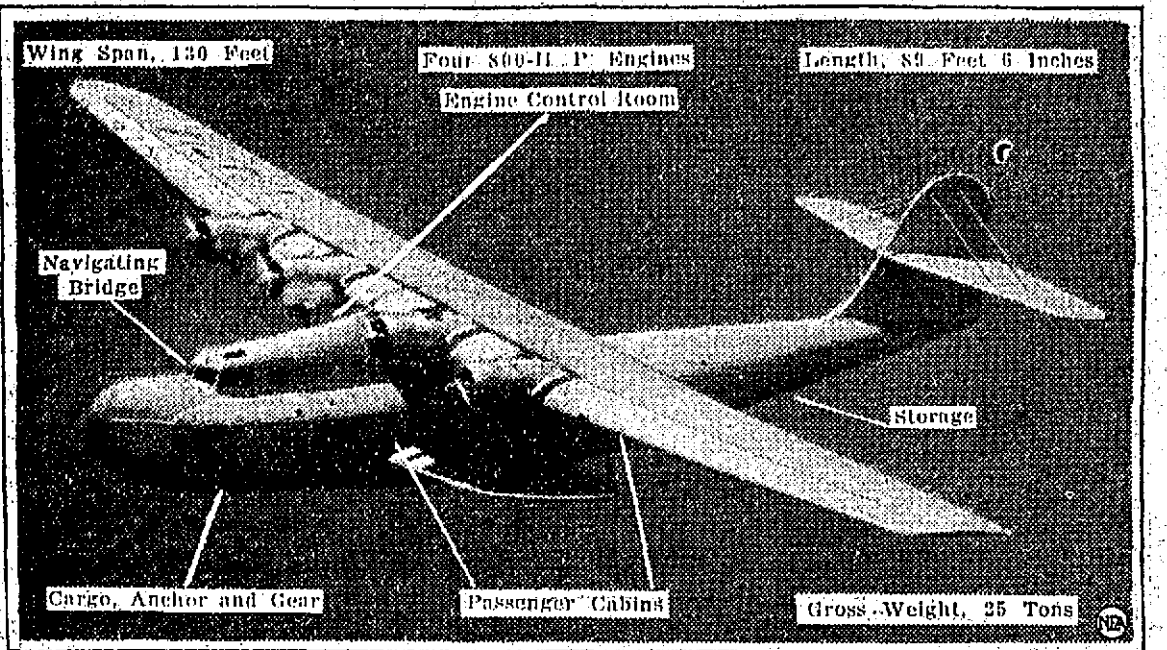

The United States, British, Germany, and France are all actively interested in developing this service.

Route More Difficult
While shorter than the Pacific route, it presents difficulties not found in the western ocean. The German plan, for instance, would use "mother ships" with landing aprons and catapult take-offs, as it now does in the South Atlantic.

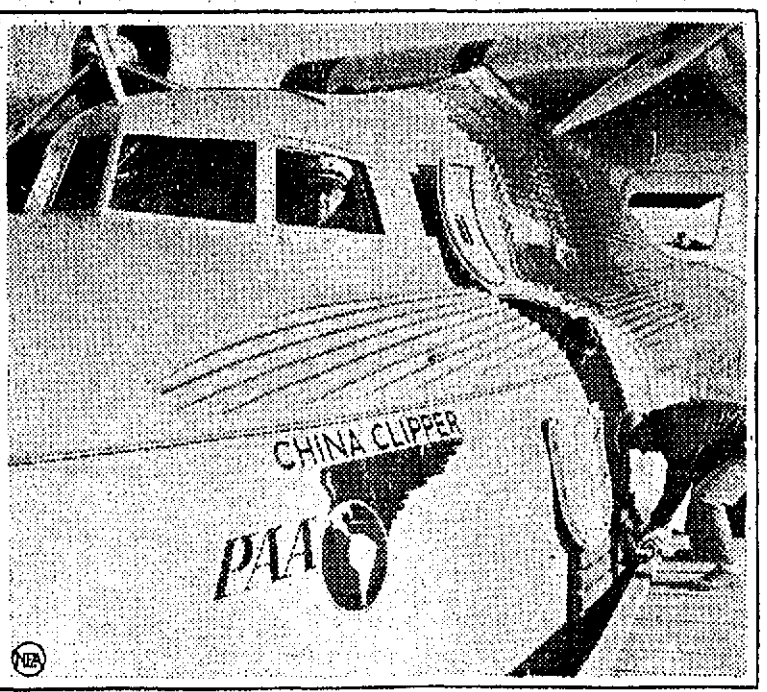

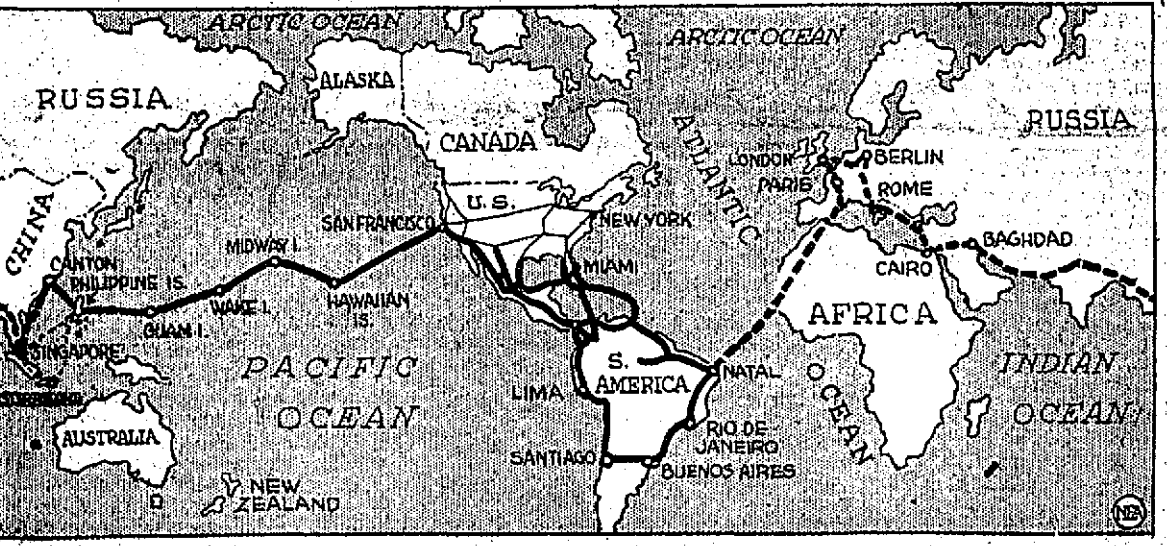

The other plans require negotiations for landing facilities and solution of weather and flying problems before going ahead. A co-operative line run jointly by British and American interests has already been laid before U. S. officials.

Representatives of this project are now in America, dickering for capital. They claim to have landing facilities at Londonderry, England, and that Neva Scotia has granted a large site for a terminus at this end. This line would be owned equally

Luxurious, huge, powerful, the Martin China Clipper, which soon inaugurates trans-Pacific service, is the greatest American plane yet built. Below, the world map shows how completion of the Pacific line will girdle the earth with regular-schedule air routes. The solid black line shows American lines, and the dotted ones indicate foreign lines, either operating or soon to be established. Very soon you will be able to take an air trip around the world merely by buying the ticket!

At his place on the navigation bridge as chief officer, Capt. Edwin Musick sits at his forward window in command of the epochal Pacific flight. . . . Captain Musick, Pan-American's No. 1 pilot, has had charge of the experimental flights which preceded regular service.

In this tiny engine-control room of the China Clipper, Chauncey D. Wright, engineer officer, sits during flights, surrounded by instruments.

Coach Hammons Perfects Bobcats' Aerial Game—Band to Follow Team

The Hope High School football team went through a long workout Tuesday in which Coach Fay Hammons devoted much time to an aerial offensive, coupled with shifty running plays.

Coach Hammons said his Bobcats would probably throw more footballs in the DeQueen game Friday afternoon than in any other contest played this season. He believes that his team will offer a great scoring threat with an improved air attack.

"We have been scouted all season by DeQueen coaches and representatives. They have seen most of our running plays. But they haven't seen a real air raid. Tell them to be ready—we are going to shower footballs all over them."

Canvass of City to Be Held Thursday—It Will Be Made in One Hour

Fifty women representing the various Parent-Teacher associations of Hope will launch a city-wide canvass at 9 a. m. Thursday to obtain clothing for approximately 100 Hope school children.

The canvass is expected to be completed within one hour. The 50 workers have been assigned certain streets. The one-hour canvass was arranged to accommodate housewives who may expect solicitors to call during that hour.

New or used clothing will be accepted. Style, size or color of clothing make no difference. All of it will be appreciated by the P. T. A. representatives.

Persons having clothing to donate, but will not be at home from 9 to 10 a. m. Thursday, may leave their articles with a neighbor.

2 Hempstead Men Guilty on Liquor

J. A. Husky, Elwood Hatch Plead Guilty to Federal Court Charges

The guilty pleas came from: Reubin L. Coe, Miller county, three counts. J. A. Husky, Hempstead, two counts. Elwood Hatch, Hempstead county, one count.

The absence of witnesses delayed the trials of Alton Bohanon, Howard county, and Claud Dodson, Hempstead, on liquor charges.

Director Dyess Issues Final Order for All Arkansas Direct-Relief

TO CLEAR SUPPLIES Last of Relief Orders Must Be Issued Before 30th

Director Warns

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—State Administrator W. R. Dyess Wednesday ordered the cessation of all activities of the Emergency Relief Administration (ERA) in Arkansas at midnight November 30.

On instruction from Washington, the state relief director instructed all state, district and county ERA officials to notify all personnel and labor working on ERA projects that these projects will be terminated November 30.

The final relief orders for direct-relief clients must be issued before that date and all cases remaining on file ERA rolls will be closed, Dyess said.

While the exact figures on the number of persons affected by the order was unannounced, it was estimated that the total would be approximately 10,000 cases.

Fordyce Pioneer Lumberman Dies

Charles W. Gates, 75, Follows Brother, E. W. Gates, in Death

FORDYCE, Ark.—Charles W. Gates, 75, who had been vice president and general manager of the Fordyce Lumber Company since 1890, died at his home at Pasadena, Calif., Tuesday. He also was president of the Crossett Lumber company, vice president of the Crossett Western company of Wauna, Ore., and treasurer of the Jackson Lumber company of Lockhart, Ala.

Mr. Gates was a lumber retailer in Waco, Texas, when his brothers, P. G. and A. H., established themselves as producers of yellow pine lumber in Arkansas. They persuaded their brother to take an interest in the Fordyce Lumber company and to become general manager of the concern. Under his management the company became one of the leading organizations of its kind in the South.

He was widely known for his philanthropic deeds. His brother E. W. Gates of Crossett died recently.

Ethiopian Beaten in Attempt to Cut Makale Communication Line

MAKALE, Ethiopia.—(AP)—Numerous brushes with armed Ethiopian bands by companies of the native army corps engaged in roundup operations continued Wednesday in the regions around this city.

The latest reports indicated that the enemy had fled, after several attempts to pierce the flanks of guards to cut off communication with General Santini's column.

The northern line was extended westward to the Tekkeze river and a native army corps completed occupation of the Gheraica region, the northern commander's message declared.

Ethiopians Claim Victory
ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia.—(AP)—A bloody victory on the southern front, won at a heavy cost of lives to both sides, was claimed Tuesday by the Ethiopian government.

It was a fight of age-old infantry against modern tank and machine gun units of the Fascist invaders and the former won. Despite a withering Italian fire, it saved the tribesmen of Emperor Haile Selassie captured four Italian tanks in desperate fighting at Anale, Ogaden province.

The battlefield was strewn with the dead of both armies, the announcement said.

Ethiopia also claimed success in another clash in the same region. The government said its warriors killed six Italian officers and many soldiers, with the remainder fleeing in panic, and captured six trucks.

Your Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

Watch the faces of your children these days, for this is the time when a youngster may come home with a large lump on each side of the jaw, the result of infection with the organism that causes mumps.

Sometimes mumps begins with chills, moderate fever, and a feeling of illness. Sometimes it involves not only the parotid gland on the side of the face in front of the ear, but also the submaxillary gland, just below the jaw.

Occasionally the swelling in mumps is so great that the features are swollen and distorted. Naturally also, as a result of the swelling, the movement of the jaw is restricted and painful.

Since this infection involves the glands that make the saliva, the mouth may be dry as a result of lack of this lubricating fluid.

The swelling in mumps may be very mild and disappear after two or three days. Then again it may last for a considerable time.

For a good many years people have had the notion that a person with mumps is especially susceptible to sour substances and cannot eat pickles or drink vinegar. This, however, is not a reliable test for presence of the disease.

When a child comes down with mumps and there are other cases in the community, it is simple for physicians to make the diagnosis promptly. Usually the child with mumps has been in contact with another child who has the disease, anywhere from 4 to 25 days previously. The usual period before appearance of this disease, after contact with another case, is 18 days.

Mumps is considered dangerous from the time when the early symptoms begin until one week after all the swelling is gone. The infection is distributed through the discharge from the nose and the saliva from the mouth.

When a child has mumps, other persons in the family, particularly the children, should not be permitted to approach him. If they do, they are likely not only to get the disease themselves, but to spread it to other children.

In most instances, a child with mumps is not permitted to attend school for at least two weeks after the time when the case is first seen, and if the swelling lasts longer than two weeks, the child must be kept at home at least one week after all swelling has disappeared.

Usually the parents in the family do not have to stay away from their work, but it is advisable for them to avoid contact with the sick child.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

LARRY GLENN drove slowly out the road that led north from the town of Midlothian, and repeated to himself the directions that had been given him at the filling station.

"First white farm house on the left side of the road after you pass the little grove of oaks," he mused. "Let's see—this must be the grove; now, when I get past it..."

He touched the brake and crawled along even more slowly. The oak grove slipped to the rear, followed by an orchard; beyond that a pleasant-looking farm house with a veranda across the front and a fringe of trees along the side of its yard came into view. Larry swung into the driveway, drove to the back yard, parked, and went up to the back door and rapped.

He heard slow footsteps inside the house; then the door was opened part way and a man peered out at him.

"Mr. Engle?" said Larry. The man nodded reluctantly.

"My name's Harder," said Larry politely. "I'm doing some field research for Uncle Sam, collecting statistics on the triple-A corn-and-hog program, and I'm afraid I'll have to bother you to answer a few questions."

The man peered up from beneath his overhanging eyebrows and hesitated. Larry smiled, in the manner of one who knows that he is making a nuisance of himself but who proposes to set it over with as painlessly as possible, and said, "It won't take but a minute or two."

THE man looked at him again, and grudgingly opened the door. "Come on in then," he said ungraciously. Larry followed him into the kitchen.

The kitchen was a large room, in the old-fashioned farm manner. A wood-burning range stood at one end, and at the other was a large table spread with a checkered tablecloth and covered with used breakfast dishes. Mr. Engle sat cautiously in a straight-backed chair and waved Larry to another, beside the table. Larry sat down, drew a notebook from his pocket, opened it, and leaned forward with another ingratiating smile.

"Now, let's see, Mr. Engle," he said. "You have 20 acres in field corn this year, and a two-acre plot of sweet corn for the market—which doesn't count, so we'll skip it. Twenty acres, and last summer you raised a crop of corn, didn't you?"

And he went on, reciting facts and figures that he had gleaned half an hour earlier in the office of the county agricultural agent; and Mr. Engle, nodding occasionally and sucking at his empty pipe, found no reason to suspect that his visitor was anything except what he represented himself to be.

"—and have you your copy of the agreement with the county agent? I'd like to glance at it, Mr. Engle," said Larry, in conclusion.

Mr. Engle looked helplessly about him, then got to his feet. "Em!" he called.

"What'd you want?" said a woman's voice, rasping and impatient, from somewhere upstairs.

"Where's my copy of that corn-hog agreement?"

"Wherever you put it, which might be 'most anywhere," said the voice. Mr. Engle stared blankly at the ceiling. There was a moment's silence, then the woman's voice called down, "Did you look in the desk in the front parlor? Might be—"

The rest of it was lost, as the woman apparently moved from one upstairs room to another. Mr. Engle looked blankly at Larry, then mumbled, "I'd better go look for it," and shuffled off, through a swinging door, to the front of the house.

Larry, left alone in the kitchen, looked about him with keen interest. He had already learned, from the county farm agent, that the Engles were childless and had no hired help; how was it, then, that at least six people had eaten breakfast in the kitchen that morning—as the used dishes on the kitchen table clearly testified?

He listened intently. Someone, the woman probably, was moving about upstairs. Engle seemed to be in the front, looking for the agreement. Larry looked over the plates on the table. Moving deftly and silently, he picked up a knife from each plate, wrapped them all carefully in a handkerchief and slipped the bundle into an inner pocket; then, standing, he looked over the table a second time.

THEN he heard Mr. Engle turning. Larry slipped into his chair again and was looking absently at the range when the farmer re-entered the kitchen.

"Here 'tis," said Mr. Engle, extending a creased and soiled document. Larry took it, scanned it with an air of vast interest, jotted down a couple of notes in his little book, and then returned it.

"I'm sorry to have bothered you," he said, smiling. "Now, if I can have a look at your stock, I'll go away and leave you in peace."

He got up to follow the sluggish Mr. Engle out the back door; and at that moment he heard more footsteps in the hall, the swinging door thumped and swung, and a stout, red-faced woman came into the kitchen, carrying an enormous armful of sheets rolled into a huge ball.

"This's one of those AAA fellows," said Engle. "He's inquiring about my corn, and so on."

She looked at Larry uncertainly, then turned back to the clothes basket.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Pain is an odd thing. Everyone who suffers with toothache or a fracture, with gallstones or sick headaches is certain when the spell is on him that he suffers pain more keenly than any one else ever did, or does, from the same cause.

This has been gone into and at last we have a verdict. Say the scientists, "There are degrees of pain. Similar afflictions cause sufferers varying degrees of agony. It depends upon the nervous temperament of the victim. Sensitive, high-strung over-emotional people are more susceptible to deep suffering."

When Spartan warriors returned "with their shields or on their backs" by cruel tests, there is no sympathy wasted or wanted. The youth endures having his front teeth knocked out or his thighs pierced by arrows without a moan, or is branded a weakling.

Of course, we civilized people only stand our boys up before machine guns and under sky bombs and snar (them with gas. A mere nothing so to speak.

But in the meantime what else are we doing?

By every means under the sun we are creating an over-emotional race. Keeping step with the palliatives and pain-easers of science (think heaven to them) is the emotional or greater susceptibility to pain.

Compare two boys—or two girls—one from the slums who never had a bandage on a cut or a run ungent on a burn, with another reared in luxury who sets the house by the ears and doctors running to cure a bumped head.

Learning to Take Hard Knocks

Which of the two will take discomfort later on as just one of those things that doesn't matter too much? Who will dramatize himself less and actually suffer less? Naturally the one who learned that knocks are something to forget—not he who puts a pin-scratch, in his emotional mind above a day's work and plays it up to the limit.

By all means we must take no chances with our children. Health first. Then humane treatment of all disease and accidents, no matter how innocent they be. This is the greatest achievement of the century to my mind. Nothing is more heart-breaking than a sick or suffering child.

But common-sense should prevent too much dramatization of hurts. It is kinder for children to learn to accept discomfort as logically as possible, even though they hiss the pats and tears and sympathetic murmurs they crave.

Why? Because pain without "nervous emotion" is less pain, or will be in future years. Fortitude, so it seems, is a palliative of potent strength.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

Even though the honestly favors subtle cosmetics that enhance her natural coloring, the imaginative woman will succumb occasionally to the exotic beauty aids which may prove to be flattering as well as amusing and attention attracting.

In the make-up-for-evening category, you'll find the most unusual preparations, of course. Grooming your face for formal occasions gives you a chance to try for effects that aren't exactly conventional and which wouldn't do at all on the street.

There is, for instance, a variety of mascaras and eyeshadows in bright colors. One manufacturer is stressing a green wax for lashes and another is putting out verdish purple, vivid blue and East Indian orange in cake form.

There are new lipsticks and rouge in yellowish brown East Indian shades, too. These certainly don't match your natural skin colors but, when worn with dark, warm winter suits and dresses, they are pretty and soft looking.

If you fancy green mascara, don't put on East Indian orange rouge and lipstick. Don't wear vivid purple eyeshadow, green mascara with powder that changes the natural glow of your skin. Just for variety any one of these is a nice idea, but more than one probably will make you look grotesque rather than interesting.

There are many new nail polish colors right now. Gold and silver are seen on some of the smartest hands at formal dances and parties. You also can get your favorite shade done up with a mother-of-pearl finish that shines and glistens under artificial light.

Another Problem

A farmer visited his son's college. Watching students in a chemistry class, he was told they were looking for a universal solvent.

"What's that?" asked the farmer.

"A liquid that will dissolve anything."

"That's a great idea," agreed the farmer. "When you find it, what are you going to keep it in?"—Everybody's Weekly (London).

The greatest enemy of song, insectivorous, and game birds is the large number of cats in the United States.

In making a herring into a kipper, the fish is split open, salted, and then placed in a smoking kiln over smoldering sawdust, wood, or crips, until considered done.

Black-Draught

Long-Established Reliable Laxative

A clean system for health! And a good, purely vegetable laxative to help cleanse the digestive tract when it gets sluggish! For this, thousands of men and women recommend Black-Draught.

Mr. O. F. Ansley, of Dallas, Texas, writes that he has used Black-Draught when needed, for more than fifty years. "It gives me quicker relief than anything I can take," he declares. "I consider it the best medicine for certain ailments." Mr. Ansley has enjoyed remarkably good health. He has lived in Texas for more than seventy years! His former home was Cuthbert, Ga., which he frequently visits. He served in a Georgia regiment during the War between the States.

Oh, I have come to know by journeying far,
How happiness is found in simple things:
The Sabbath stillness of late afternoon;
A cottage silver-thatched beneath the moon;
A supper table blessed by evening grace;
Sweet benediction of the rain against my face;
Across the pointed desert of the sky,

Of learning where true joy is found at last;

Tabernacle Texts for Rest of Week

Rev. Bert Webb Speaks From John 7:46 at Meeting Tuesday Night

The Rev. Bert Webb spoke at the tabernacle Tuesday night from the text "Never Man Spoke Like This Man," John 7:46. The authority and conviction with which Christ spoke were especially stressed, and the fact that Christ did not utter words but went right to the heart of things, as he did with Nicodemus in telling him "Ye must be born again."

WITH THE LADIES By Helen Welshimer

The return to the old-fashioned institution called a honeymoon is one of signs that prosperity, which we have been chasing around a hat, really may be hiding out somewhere.

Brides and bridegrooms, if you please, are traveling to Niagara Falls. They are standing in the moonlight, at the water. They are buying picture postcards to send back home. They are off on a holiday, getting acquainted.

The United Press, believing that honeymoons are a barometer of prosperity, made a survey in the city by the waterfall—a survey which revealed that there has been an increase of about 30 per cent in the number of registrations of newlyweds this year as compared to the corresponding period of 1934.

A honeymoon is a luxury. A man and a woman can fit the key in their own front door on the day of their marriage quite as easily as postponing it while they ride in cars or on trains to some special scenic point to celebrate the fact that hereafter they are going to have breakfast together every morning of every year.

Honeymoon Can't Be Postponed During the last few years honeymoons have been on the wane. The money was needed for chairs on which to sit and dishes on which to eat. Therefore, the boys and girls and men and women who have been tuning their hearts to the same tempo have deferred their honeymoons until some future time. Next year, in five years, sometime, we'll go to Vienna or Los Angeles or Niagara, they told each other; and sometimes they believed it.

The time for a honeymoon is immediately after the wedding ceremony. Traveling somewhere with the one you love best is twice as much fun before you know that he is going to send back his eggs if they are boiled three minutes instead of two, and that he always whistles the same melody when he shaves.

Better Start for Married Life Marriages without a doubt should get off to a better start now that a bride doesn't have to hurry home from the office on her wedding day, to get dinner, or, at the best, merely gets a week-end holiday at the beginning of her marital adventure.

Sociologists and psychologists have often contended that marriage has a better chance to begin smoothly if the two people concerned have some time, away from all obligations and acquaintances, in which to become adjusted to each other. Even marital independence depends on financial independence. Now that the honeymoon is receiving its pilgrims again marriage is getting off to a better start.

Clergymen, too, are reporting more weddings and bigger wedding fees. This, too, is indicative of the fact that there is more money available. Depression Delayed Weddings Young people, of marriageable age, have suffered greatly from the economic entanglements into which the nation was plunged a while back. Boys and girls had to postpone marriage because the boys didn't have jobs. Lots of them still are looking at diplomas from schools of business administration and wishing that there was some money to administer. Not being able to marry, these same young people have been forced to postpone parenthood. After all, a honeymoon is one of the lesser things they have had to forego. Those who were able to marry at all were so fortunate they could afford to give up the sound of rushing water along the Canadian border. Now that honeymoons are in again, it augurs well for marriage in general. Soon bridegrooms may be buying engagement rings for their girls as naturally as our fathers and grandfathers did, and the narrow wedding band will be guarded in the old time manner. Receptions and orange blossoms and wedding marches may be revived, too. In fact, getting married may assume the importance of a social event again!

"Over Ethiopia" at the Saenger

Haile Selassie's Kingdom, and Joe E. Brown Film, on Screen

An old Ethiopian custom, dating back to medieval times is that of never showing oneself in public without an armed escort. Everyone of any social standing in Ethiopia appears with a minimum of one guard who follows him like his shadow.

This is but one of the many unusual, impressive scenes in Paramount's "Wings Over Ethiopia," at the Saenger Thursday and Friday, starring, real life picture, the first full length feature of this, until recently, obscure empire in Africa. Haile Selassie, emperor of this strange kingdom, one of the most colorful figures in the world today, has been photographed in many intimate scenes, both in his ancient palace and in his public life at Addis Ababa. In glimpses of his family in the imperial court gardens are also seen.

Other thrilling, informative sequences include pictures of the economic, political, civil, legal and ceremonial life of natives, ranging from the market places of Addis Ababa to the wild hill tribes in the mountainous interior.

Joe E. Brown, the funnel-mouthed comedian is the other feature on this Thursday and Friday double program at the Saenger in what is heralded as his most uproarious comedy romance.

In addition to Joe's laugh-provoking stunts, there are four lively songs, for the picture is one of back stage life and the singing comes in naturally.

Joe E., himself sings and dances and does acrobatic stunts with the famous

A few centuries ago, a man's rank or station in life could be told by the kind of bird he used in the sport of hawk-hunting. Kings used the gyrfalcon, the peregrine, yemen the goshawk, poor men the tercel, and knaves the kestrel.

A Faithful Portrait

Samuel F. B. Morse was an eminent painter before he invented telegraphy. He painted a scene showing a man in death-agony once, and asked a physician friend to examine it. "Well?" Morse inquired after the doctor had scrutinized the picture. "What's your opinion?"

The physician removed his spectacles, turned to Morse and commented: "Malaria!"—American Humorist.

Andrews Is Named to Welfare Post

Searcy Man Chosen Commissioner to Succeed Roy Prewitt, Resigned

LITTLE ROCK. — Charles H. Andrews, former Searcy, Ark., welfare administrator, was appointed state welfare commissioner Tuesday night at a meeting of executive committee of the State Public Welfare Commission at the office of W. R. Dyess, state FERA and WPA director, in the old postoffice building.

Governor Fretwell took the floor to outline his views on the commissioner question. He told the committee flatly that it must keep politics out of the matter.

"I have no particular man in mind, and no one to advise you except in a general way," he said. "You must select for this position the best man that can be obtained. He must be a practical man with plenty of common sense and an understanding of the problems that he will be called upon to face.

"Your appointment must be entirely nonpolitical, and do not let any personal likes or dislikes influence you."

After his talk the governor and Mr. Dyess went to the committee and got down to business. It did not reach its decision until nearly two hours later.

Mr. Andrews will assume his new duties Monday. It was announced. He will take over the work that has been done since the resignation of Roy Prewitt, several weeks ago, by Kenneth Coger as acting commissioner. Mr. Coger, who was at the meeting, tendered his resignation several days ago. It is effective Friday, when he will take a position in the office of Homer M. Adkins, collector of internal revenue for Arkansas.

Henry Armstrong of Fort Smith, chairman of the Executive Committee, presided. Others present were: James L. Bland, Walnut Ridge; Chancellor John E. Chambers, Danville; Claude Mann, Malvern, and Elgan C. Robertson, Marianna.

Miners are strictly forbidden to smoke or carry matches in British mines, yet 47 deaths were caused last year by breaking this rule.

Industrialist Shot by His Secretary

Important German Killed in New York City—Blonde Is Held

NEW YORK. — (AP) — A pretty blonde secretary was charged Tuesday night with slaying Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, 43, well-to-do German industrialist and political economist, early Tuesday.

Dr. Gebhardt, who had a wife and two children in Germany, was shot four times and died almost instantly in his lower apartment overlooking East river.

Shortly after his body, clad in an old-fashioned night shirt, was found in his bedroom, Miss Vera Stretz, 31, was discovered weeping bitterly on a third floor fire escape.

"Yes, I did it," police quoted her as saying.

The officers declared she told them she had been engaged to Dr. Gebhardt. In her handbag they said they found a diamond ring, a .32 caliber revolver with four empty shells, and a stained silk night gown. She was dressed for the street.

Throughout the day's questioning, Miss Stretz refused to repeat the alleged confession or supply a possible motive. She was held without bail on a suspicion of homicide charge.

Her father, Frank Stretz, was brought before her at the police station.

"Vern, what's happened to you?" he cried.

She burst into tears, but said nothing.

Dr. Gebhardt, a member of the firm of Frank von Knoop, Inc., importers and exporters of shoe machinery, was described by associates as a brilliant scholar who had accumulated a sizable fortune.

Italians Advance

was reported. Commander Gabre Heyot attacked a vastly superior Italian unit, killing the commander and a large number of soldiers and dispersing the enemy in disorder.

Ethiopian soldiers, eight killed and the Italians many more, it was stated, and "the conduct of the Ethiopian troops was beyond all praise."

Rains May Delay Battle

Ethiopia, an authority said Tuesday, expects the first major battle of the war with Italy to be fought within a few days.

It will take place, this source predicted, on the northern front south of Ras Kassa, where the Italian forces are advancing. Unseasonable rains may delay the engagement indefinitely.

Ethiopia's northern forces are dropping back with large armies seeking to join with better-equipped troops from Addis Ababa. Another object is to draw the Italians southward into mountain peaks, where contact with the rear can be maintained only with difficulty.

Large forces from Addis Ababa started five weeks ago to join the northern armies of Ras Seyoum and Ras Kassa but their progress is necessarily slow. They are now at least five days' journey from the Tigrean army, it was estimated.

Ethiopian reports said only a small group of Italians has reached the Makale area and that Haile Selassie's warriors have not yet been dislodged from mountain heights.

An associate of the emperor said heavy Ethiopian casualties were likely when the main armies clash, "because we are afraid we cannot keep our northern fighters from throwing themselves with fanatical zeal upon the Italians."

But, he stated, "you may rest assured the Italian losses will be heavy, too."

Reports to the emperor said Italian air raids are proving less effective daily because natives no longer fear the planes and have learned to scatter for cover.

by British and American interests if present plans go through.

The Pacific service opening this month already plans an extension from Hawaii to New Zealand and Australia unless some complication should arise over the barren speckle islands which were recently "colonized" by the United States to serve as way stations.

Other Route Studied

The north Pacific route to Asia has also been studied, and may be developed in connection with the rapidly growing Alaskan traffic.

Working north from the China terminal, connection could eventually also be made with the Russian lines, which furnish another air link across the whole of Asia and connect with the German lines leading westward to the Atlantic.

Or perhaps connection with the Russian lines might more easily be made by the North Pacific route when that is eventually established, as no doubt it will be within a comparatively few years.

These rapidly expanding airlines are making international travel, mail, and light express service a matter of hours instead of weeks across what used to be the most inaccessible parts of the earth's surface.

To America has been given the honor of forging the last great link in the chain of world air communication.

Says U. S. Banks in Good Condition

Utah Financier Optimistic Over Future "Country" Banks

NEW ORLEANS. — (P) — Small banks of the United States "have never been in better shape than they are today," E. G. Bennett, Ogden, Utah, financier, said Monday as the 61st annual convention of the American Bankers Association opened.

Bennett, president of the First Security corporation of Ogden, heads 23 institutions in Utah and Idaho.

He was highly optimistic over the future of the "country" banks, but said their progress would be accelerated if the federal government would abandon emergency lending agencies, which he said "have been continued beyond the depression."

"Banks generally are seeking loans," Bennett said, "and are taking care of the legitimate needs. In the last month or two we have noticed a marked increase in loan inquiries, which I think can be attributed to the increased urge of business to reach out and start going again."

Of the smaller institutions he said, "there has been a tremendous amount of house cleaning, which has helped."

over the field Friday afternoon," Coach Hammons said.

Looking for plenty of passes from the Leopards, Coach Hammons also stressed a pass defense in practice sessions this week.

The Bobcats were given blackboard instructions Wednesday morning. Another pass session was planned for Wednesday afternoon and Thursday.

The team came out of the Prescott game last Friday in good shape, and the squad is expected to be in top form for the tussle with DeQueen in which the championship of district 10 will be at stake.

DeQueen has won 18 of 20 games in the past season, having been held to a scoreless tie by Nashville, and lost to Broken Bow, Okla. The Bobcats have not lost to a team in the district this season.

The 37-piece Hope Boys band will accompany the team to DeQueen. A large delegation of Hope supporters will also be on hand.

Cut in Interest Rate Is Advocated

Roosevelt Urges Utilization of Surplus Funds in Recovery Drive

WASHINGTON. — (P) — President Roosevelt expressed the hope Wednesday that interest rates would be lowered so as to make large bank reserves more useful in the recovery drive.

The president agreed that expanded bank portfolios would play a very essential part in recovery if properly used.

He added that if this money lies unused in any reasonable way, large deposits would slow up recovery.

Soviet Savings Banks Popular

MOSCOW. — (P) — In official figures just published here, Soviet savings banks claim to have 15,300,000 deposits. Deposits in the first nine months of 1935 amounted to 460,000,000 rubles (220,000,000), two and a half times more than in the corresponding period of 1934.

New Deal Provokes Dispute in Court

Conservatives, Liberals Split in Deliberation Over Appeals

WASHINGTON. — (P) — A 19-year-old federal law precipitated a virtual New Deal conflict in the supreme court Tuesday, with a barrage of questions from the bench emphasizing anew the "liberal-conservative" split of the justices.

Validity of the federal warehouse act was at issue. Assailing its constitutionality was James M. Beck, former collector general and a leader of the American Liberty League.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general, argued for the government, contending the warehouse system was necessary for the orderly interstate marketing of farm products, especially cotton.

Neither had an opportunity to conduct his argument as planned. The justices continually interrupted with questions.

Keenan drew a critical fire from Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds, Butler and Sutherland. They are regarded as the "conservatives" of the court.

Justice Brandies, considered among the "liberals," aided the government spokesman by re-wording Keenan's contentions in a question. And he shot numerous questions at Beck.

She Can Smoke If She'll Come Back

KANSAS CITY. — (P) — With two railroad tickets to McAlester, Okla., a carton of cigarettes and the price of a marriage license, Guy Hendrix, 26, a jewelry salesman, haunted the Missing Persons Bureau Tuesday night, looking for the girl he said scorned him for tobacco.

If Miss Virginia Whitaker—description: "Well, she's mighty pretty but she's stubborn"—will return to Hendrix, she can smoke all she likes. He's had enough trouble.

Miss Whitaker and Hendrix, both of McAlester, had been sweethearts for two years, until she started smoking, he said, adding:

"I didn't like that smoking business and I told her. So she blew—I mean really blew. I can't find her any place, but I think she's in Kansas City so I'll keep looking."

Hendrix said the home furnishings are paid for and "everything is ready for the wedding" down at McAlester.

"I gave up my job and wrecked my car on top of all the cash I spent for telegrams looking for her. But I gotta get her back."

"I'm going to marry her right on the spot when I find her—and she can smoke a pipe at the ceremony if she wants to."

Red Cross Drive Here Wednesday

Annual Roll Call for Membership Being Conducted in Hempstead

The annual membership roll call of the American Red Cross got under way in Hope and Hempstead county Wednesday with Mrs. Arthur Swanke as chairman of the drive.

Business houses were being canvassed by Hope city committees Wednesday morning.

The annual state roll call is supported by the following proclamation by Governor Futrell:

"To all to whom these presents shall come: Greetings:

"WHEREAS, The annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross will soon be launched in every state in the Union; and

"WHEREAS, On June 30 the Red Cross closed one of the busiest fiscal years in its peace-time history. The organization extended aid in 160 catastrophes, an average of three a week during that 12 months. In 128 domestic disasters it reached into 306 counties of 37 states and lessened the distress of 110,000 disaster sufferers; and

"WHEREAS, The Red Cross is now in the midst of an unparalleled nationwide safety program, designed to reduce the appalling annual toll of accidental deaths on the highway, in the home, and on the farm; and

WHEREAS, The Red Cross may be expected to carry on when disaster strikes in health work, in service to war veterans and their families, in promoting better citizenship and universal friendship through its Junior Red Cross in accident prevention—only in the degree to which it is backed by the citizenship.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, J. M. Futrell, Governor of the State of Arkansas, do hereby urge every adult resident of the state with an income to respond to this noble cause.

(Signed) J. M. Futrell
Governor of Arkansas

Pete Fox to Join Rowe at El Dorado

World Series Pals Will Enjoy Hunt in Arkansas This Month

LITTLE ROCK—Erwin (Pete) Fox, right fielder for the Detroit Tigers of the American League, conquerors of the Chicago Cubs of the National League for the 1935 baseball championship, spent six bits of his World Series swag for dinner here Tuesday night.

Mickey Cochran's slugging garden-er, (he led the series batsmen with a mark of .385), turned out to be a regular guy like the majority of big league stars. He didn't have much to say but was willing to answer all questions.

Caught between courses, Pete said he was en route to El Dorado to visit his teammate and pal, Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe.

Schoolboy and I are going hunting," informed Pete. "I drove all the way from Evansville, Ind., my home town, for this binge, and I mean to have one swell time. They tell me Schoolboy is just as good in the woods as he is on the hill. Then buddy, he's a real shot.

Rowe, Good As Ever

"Just because Rowe didn't win 16 straight ball games this year is no sign he is slipping. Rowe is one of the best in the game. Ask other ball players. He had a lot of tough breaks this year and look back at the box scores and see, if he was given any soft spots. He's one of the best-hitting pitchers I ever saw."

The Fox-Rowe-Hank Greenberg alliance started in 1932 when the trio played together with Beaumont, Texas League champions of that season. In 1933 the Detroit club decided they were ripe for the big league. With the Tigers as with Beaumont, it is still Fox the outfielder, Rowe the pitcher and Greenberg, the first baseman.

"Yep, we've gone a long way at that," reminisced Fox. "Little did we dream when we went up that we would be members of the 1934 American League champs and capture the World Series in 1935. I don't suppose there is any room for us to kick."

Another Record Discovered

During the conversation it was brought out that Fox established another World Series record besides his six doubles in the '34 set against the St. Louis Cardinals. It was figured out that Pete had hit in 12 consecutive World Series games. He got at least one safety in all six games of the '35 series. After going hitless in the first, he hit in the remaining six against the Cards last year. Statistics weren't available last night but the Gazette Sports Department believes the series experts overlooked one. "But it's immaterial to me," Pete said.

Fox didn't have a whole lot to say about the series. Naturally he thinks the best team won. He said Chicago had a great up-and-coming ball club and hoped that if the Tigers repeated for the third time, it would be somebody besides the Cubs.

"Those Chicago kids won't be as nervous the next time," he continued. "We caught the Cubs like the Cards caught us. Lon Warneke is the best pitcher I ever faced even if I did get four hits off him. I just swung and prayed. In my opinion, Warneke is a better pitcher than either of the Deans. Don't get me wrong, Dizzy and Paul are great chunkers but I believe that Warneke has a shade.

"I don't care to go into detail about the George Moriarty situation. George is one of the best umpires in baseball. The Cubs haven't a single squawk coming. Moriarty calls 'em like he see 'em. He isn't a homer, if you know what I mean. We did a lot of bellyaching ourselves when we lost to the Cards. But it didn't do us any good.

"I've heard a lot about Arkansas, especially the fine ball players produced in this state. I can't understand it. You fellows breathe the same kind of air down here—don't you? Darn if I can tell any difference."

"By the way, Bill Dickey lives in Little Rock—doesn't he? No use me calling up though. I'll bet he's out hunting somewhere. I'm not jealous, because the Schoolboy and I will be having some fun ourselves soon."

Fox will be 27 his next birthday. A graduate of the sandlots, he broke into professional baseball in 1930 while wheeling in the Middle Atlantic League. He played with Evansville in '31 and was shipped to Beaumont the next season.

"Remember," he concluded, the name is F-O-X, not F-O-X-X. "Don't put me on the spot."

Government Wins in New Deal Tests

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Flour and Coal Tax Appeals

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The government won two technical victories in New Deal litigation Monday when the supreme court declined to review cases involving the Guffey coal and the amended agricultural adjustment acts.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed also was given permission to argue the validity of the Bankhead cotton control law in a case already pending before the court which may involve the constitutional question even though the government is not a party to the suit.

The Armistice day return of the nine justices from a two-week recess brought echoes of disagreement among them on legal issues.

The final opinions disposed of tax and other cases of mostly local interest. The New Deal and its constitutionally-disputed laws then were given attention as follows in "orders" handed down by Chief Justice Hughes:

1. The court rejected the request of the Washburn-Crosby Milling Company of Kansas for a review of a case involving the constitutionality of processing taxes levied since congress amended the AAA act to "strengthen" it last August.

2. The court refused to grant a temporary injunction restraining the government from assessing the Guffey coal law's so-called "penalty" tax of 10 per cent against the Carter Coal Company of West Virginia.

U. S. Signs Treaty on Canadian Trade

Reciprocal Pact Between Two Nations Is Announced by Roosevelt

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An agreement between the United States and Canada on a reciprocal trade treaty was announced by President Roosevelt Monday.

The treaty, which will be signed by the president and the Canadian prime minister, is the first of a series of similar pacts which the United States has been negotiating with other nations since the end of the war.

The new treaty with Canada will provide for the elimination of most tariff barriers between the two countries, and will also provide for the elimination of most trade restrictions on the movement of goods and services between the two nations.
